Elliott: $40 million or I die

Prez sees 800-foot Cloyd Heck Marvin, gets divine message

by God

Special to The GW Hack it

GW President Lloyd H. Elliott has stunned the University community by announcing his imminent demise unless the Campaign for George Washington reaches its goal of $75 million by May 1.

"I have seen the light, and it came to me in the form of an 800-foot Cloyd Heck Marvin," Elliott said. "And he said unto me, 'Lloyd, as President of this fine institution I command you to raise that sum of money by May 1, or your work here will be finished. You will come home to me.'"

Marvin, president of GW in the 1930s, 40s and 50s, has been dead for 30 years. He could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Elliott did not appear frazzled by this week's events. "I've always believed I was a man of destiny, one of the chosen. God has sent me this sign to renew my faith in GW and its alumni. They will not let me down. The faithful will rally round me in this, my direst hour, to raise the $40 million needed for scholarships, library acquisitions, research, and my pension fund."

The faithful could not be found for comment yesterday.

"Ever since I saw Oh God, I knew that it was just a matter of time before the Almighty would contact me," Elliott said. "You see, John Denver and I look, sound and pantomime the same. My contact with God, therefore, was inevitable."

Elliott went on to describe his intensely-held religious precepts. "My 60-odd years as a choirboy and my 15 months as a Hostess Pudding Pie spokesman have brought me closer to God," Elliott confided. He said that except for Roger Mudd, he is the most religious American alive today.

Elliott refused to comment on how he thinks God will call him home should the Campaign for George Washington not reach its goals. However, he did say, "God is very fond of calling home his sages with a meat hook."

When asked if he thought his announcement was similar to Oral Roberts' donation ultimatum, Elliott said, "Roberts is nothing but a media whore using religion to feed his bottomless coffers. He cheapens God and religion in general when he pulls these PR tactics. I hope his ears fall off."

Oral Roberts replied to Elliott's charges by saying, "Elliott is nothing but a media whore using religion to feed his bottomless coffers. He cheapens God and religion in general when he pulls these PR tactics. I hope his ears fall off." To resolve their religious differences, the two spiritual leaders have scheduled a duel for Easter Sunday.

GW big cheese Lloyd H. Elliott, shown here speaking with GW Hack it reporter God, says it's your money or his life by May 1.

Elliott said the whole experience has been extremely gratifying. "My body has been cleansed by my contact with God. And knowing that in less than a month I might shoot and kill Oral Roberts just makes it sweeter," said Elliott.

Manoch to Saga: 'Eat me cooked!'

by Oscar Mayer

First Name in Bologna

Manoch Nava, the GW weenie wonder, will take over the school's food service next year, after his one-man hot dog business outbid Saga yesterday.

Manoch, who has interestingly delighted Foggy Bottom pallets from his street-side vending cart for the last year and a half, signed a one-year guaranteed contract to cater to each of GW's five dining halls. Manoch will be paid $100,000 to supply what he describes as "avant garde" cuisine.

Saga failed to lower its $100,001 bid during the five-hour negotiation session, prompting GW officials to turn to Manoch, a source close to The GW Hatchet said.

"GW's working with a tight budget," Budget Director Robert Shoup said. "We've got to put some of our cost-cutting methods into effect."

Meanwhile, GW President Lloyd H. Elliott said yesterday, "I've been a Manoch fan since God knows when. My wife loves his dogs, too. In fact, in bed, almost every night she cuddles up to me and drools on my silk PJs in lust of that thing he calls the C&C dog. She's always mumbling about how the extras seep throughout."

Manoch, in broken English, said from his cart yesterday, "I've got plans, big plans. And I promise by the end of September to, in a split second, have in my memory the name of each GW student. Now that I'm top dog, I won't be calling every fourth customer 'buddy.'"

He said "most" cooking will come from his 5-by-3-by-8-foot cart outside the 21st Street entrance of Tower Records. Other food preparation will take place in the Market Square Cafeteria kitchen because "it is the only one that will pass health inspection," he said.

Manoch said he will continue to employ each attendant of the Market Square Cafeteria because "I wouldn't want to mess with that Ms. Hattie. You know who (See THE WEENIE, p.7)

Gopher sez: 'more quad or I munch on the Metro!'

by George Hyman

Owens Hall of D.C.

Giving in to repeated questioning, University Construction Manager Joe Eagers admitted yesterday the new excavation delaying work in the quad was actually caused by an 1,800-lb. gopher, not by air-conditioning installation, as was previously reported.

"It was horrible," Eagers said, breaking into tears. "It came right up out of the ground ... ruined our lunch break ... I'm finding it really hard to talk about this."

According to Eagers, his previous statements were part of a cover-up ordered by "a high-ranking University official with the initials C. D." in an attempt to prevent GW students from learning the gopher infiltration would cost

(See FRED, p.8)

Manoch Nava this week outbid Saga for GW's food service contract, and has begun to get acquainted with his new surroundings.

News of the World

Now you've done it Ollie

(AP)—Fawn Hall, ex-secretary to Lt. Col. Oliver North, revealed yesterday the events that took place the night before the president fired him from the National Security Council.

"I can clearly remember it, I had just been boffed by Ollie," said the buxom, blonde beauty. "Suddenly, there was a knock on the bathroom door. We knew if we didn't think fast, our seven-year love fest would be over."

Upon opening the door, Hall recounted, she saw four Girl Scouts "in the cutest little green knee socks" trying to hock their wares.

"I was all set to buy a couple boxes of Sequoias and Thin Mints," Hall said. "But that wasn't enough for Ollie."

Hall said North forced her and the Girl Scouts into his office where he made them all "sing the entire score of Annie, Get Your Gun while touching their ... rosebuds."

"It was just too much for Ollie. And so, in a fit of sexual madness, he took everything on his desk, including secret documents as well as those poor little girls, and stuffed them in the paper shredder," Hall said with a tear in her eye.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) confirmed Hall's story, saying that a thorough janitorial investigation of North's office turned up shredded pre-pubescent in the wastebasket.

Reagan has no penis

(AP)—Chief of Staff Howard Baker announced yesterday that President Reagan thinks he is Mariel Hemingway. In an unusual White House press briefing, in which Baker spoke to reporters through his sphincter, the Chief of Staff described the president's condition.

"Yesterday, Mr. Reagan woke up and surprised his personal chef by asking for a breakfast of silicon sausages," said Baker. Reagan's advisers ignored his remarks, believing that Reagan was just a bit woozy from reading a Bazoooka Joe comic strip the night before. However, Baker said, "We all began to get a little nervous when the president asked

Secretary of State Shultz if he wanted to, and I quote, 'hold his friend while he wee-wee.'"

Baker said all their fears were confirmed when the president revised his arms control policy. "Reagan started saying 'no more guns, no more guns, I want to see a farewell to arms,'" said Baker. The president then collapsed into the arms of Caspar Weinberger.

The Secretary of Defense said that when the president fell chest first into his arms, he saw Reagan's left breast deflate. Yet Weinberger attributed the chest deflation not to Reagan's president-to-actress transformation, but rather to Soviet espionage tactics.

Baker said Reagan was taken to Bethesda Naval Hospital, where doctors were frantically working to put back his prostrate. "While the president is incapacitated, the White House has asked Alexander Haig to come to Washington to take charge," said Baker.

NATO: We're Beatrice

Brussels (AP)—In an unprecedented takeover bid, Beatrice—the widely-known conglomerate that owns everything in the United States except The GW Hatchet—has acquired all but one NATO-member nation.

France, the lone political holdout in the acquisition, refused to participate in the deal, citing American contempt for Jerry Lewis (France's comedic idol) as the main point of disagreement.

"And besides, they wouldn't throw in enough Peter Pan Peanut Butter for my kids," said French President Francois Mitterrand.

Despite the holdout, Beatrice spokesman Pat Buchanan said of the deal, "Ooo, it feels so good."

"Except for forcing Margret Thatcher to shave her back and requiring Turkey to change its name to 'Processed Chicken Roll,' we plan on leaving Europe just the way it is," said Buchanan.

NATO experts expressed their reservations about the corporate takeover, but they were willing to admit the buy-out would "do wonders" for their stock in Tropicana citrus products.

In a revealing statement, Beatrice Chairman of the Board McLean Stevenson told stockholders, "Well, when you get right down to it, Lee Iacocca smells like a lox."

Commies throw in towel

Moscow (AP)—As the latest in his series of sweeping reforms, Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev announced today the complete abolition of communism as a form of government in the Soviet Union.

"Let's face facts. Marxist-Leninism just doesn't cut it in today's world," Gorbachev said.

As part of the new plan, the Politburo will be completely disbanded and its members relocated as floorwalkers in Gumm, the "Macy's of the Soviet Union." In addition, Lenin's body, until now housed in a protective glass case in the Kremlin, will be removed to a Moscow crematorium, and the ashes scattered over Western Europe.

"It's about time we got that stinking corpse out of here, anyway," Soviet Foreign Secretary Andrei Gromyko said.

Reaction from the Soviet people has yet to be determined, largely because none could be located. One member of the Supreme Soviet reportedly said they were all "out on a long lunch."

WRGW: a sham, fraud & travesty

by Guglielmo Marconi Static Guard

Student-run radio station WRGW will not, and in fact never has planned to, broadcast to residence halls, a station spokesman announced yesterday after WRGW once again failed to break campus airwaves as was promised.

"The whole operation was going to go to hell in a handbasket and we knew that from the start," WRGW Managing Director James Synder said at a press conference held in George's Rathskeller. "We know GW students well enough to know no one would care if we had a 50,000-watt FM station or worked with tin cans and string."

"When students want to listen to music, they plug in their Walkmans and CD players and put on their own tunes—commercial-free and without a bunch of moronic, pseudo-hip, smarmy, amateur DJs talking every five minutes," Synder said.

Synder and WRGW Business Director John Conforti said they never intended for anyone to actually hear the station. "We think we did a heck of an impressive job in that department," Synder said.

The two told the press all they wanted to do was live out a childhood dream of running an AM rock station with an incredibly low audience share. "I've seen all the episodes of 'WKRP in Cincinnati' 10 times over. Herb Tarlik is my idol," Conforti said.

Although WRGW will not broadcast to outside sources, Synder said station members will continue to play records because "it's great therapy" for the student DJs.

"There's something about locking a person up in a small room with a stack of records for a couple of hours that does wonders for the soul," he said. "And what else are we going to do with all that equipment we bought with those large, but undisclosed, amounts of cash that we appropriated from unnamed, anonymous sources close to student funds?"

GW Student Association President Adam Freedman was unavailable for comment.

Provost William D. Johnson said he was "sorry" WRGW would not be broadcasting especially after, "I put my neck on the line in December to get those whining little dogs started in the first place."

The burning question is what will GW do with the transmitters WRGW spent so much time trying to obtain and install. GW Housing Director Ann E. Webster, who played an instrumental role in the transmitter deal, said she is not worried because, "I still have the receipt for them [the transmitters]."

NEWSFLASH: Woo K. Lee, former resident and gun-toter of Calhoun Hall, was seen Tuesday milling about the site of the 1988 Summer Olympics in Lee's native home of Seoul, Korea. After spotting American CIA agents, who were cleverly disguised as Nicaraguan contras, Lee dodged the agents in the ping-pong Hall of Fame. Agents were unable to track down Lee at his home address—he left seven different forwarding addresses at a local hotel and there are more than 1,000 Woo K. Lees listed in the Seoul white pages directory. Lee has not been seen since.

GW still sucks

In the 1985 April Fools Day GW Hatchet, we promulgated the thesis that GW sucks. It's now two years later and our thesis has been revised to stand as follows: GW sucks even more. Just look at the cold (and semi-rigid) facts about GW.

GW's basketball team sucks. GW's academic reputation sucks. The rise of conservatism on the GW campus sucks. GW's sky-rocketing tuition sucks. GW's real estate deals vis-a-vis educational priorities sucks. GW's lack of a campus sucks. Marion Barry sucks and so does Effie. GW's professors think their school sucks. The parking situation at GW sucks. The word pucks rhymes with sucks. Saga undoubtedly sucks. Preregistration sucks. And the lack of a quad sucks—to name just a few of our observations.

In fact, perhaps GW's only saving grace is the existence of The Colonial, America's model for journalistic excellence. But that's not enough to compensate for GW's infinite faults and we think it is now time for a change.

Essentially, there are four types of students here at GW. 1) Those rejected from Georgetown who love D.C., 2) Students who pride themselves on attending a school that sucks, 3) Students from unheard of Third World countries whose annual GNP is three grapes and 4) Dion. As a result of this limited diversity in GW's student population, GW sucks.

Essentially, the University, to rid itself of its suck-like image, must close. Simple, but effective.

All in all, it's pretty clear that all of us at The GW Hatchet would rather be regional salesmen for Donald Regan Pez dispensers than GW students. And we bet you would, too. By the way, you also suck.

And so do these

Although today's GW Hatchet is satire, our precious editorial space is and always will be reserved purely for the advancement of deeply-held socio-political opinions. Therefore, we wish to broach an issue of utmost concern. In particular, Americans, for the last 200 years or so, have been spoon-fed the preposterous and fascist notion that the Bill of Rights is worthwhile. As Jefferson once said, "Those amendments are nothing but a crock of shit."

Just consider some of the repugnant and vulgar concepts that have flowed out of those amendments:

- Women's rights—Come on, barefoot and pregnant is just plain natural.
- Civil rights—Imagine how beautiful it must have been in those pre-1861 years; blacks in chains and Harriet Tubman being whipped ... Aaaaahh, the good ole days.
- Catholics as president—Ugh.
- The Cosby Show.
- Giving Jews the right to speak when not spoken to—double Ugh.
- Prison sentences for Klan members.
- Long-haired, pot-smoking hippie freaks protesting about such banal events as Vietnam, police repression, poverty and a Nixon Presidency. What next? Criticism over Reagan's Iran deal?
- McCarthy's death—perhaps the greatest tragedy of the 20th century (except for our failure to deploy nuclear weapons in the Grenada conflagration).
- Dion fasting.
- And last, but not least, The GW Colonial.

So wake up, Mr. President—only you can save America—push now for the repeal of the Bill of Rights (Nancy says it's OK).

Letters to the Editor

Wholesome humor

Dear Editor,

Being a member of the Board of Directors of the Daughters of the American Revolution puts me in touch with a great many individuals intent on preserving the institutions of America. I write this letter as a representative of those people. We all agree that The GW Hatchet, through its Moonbaby cartoon, goes a long way in providing wholesome entertainment for America's youth. Nowadays, all we ever see in the established papers are smut, sex and left-wing propaganda. But along comes the comic genius behind Moonbaby, Shawn Belschwender, and America gets pure, unadulterated American humor. Thanks.

-Ann B. Davis

Get a job

Dear Editor,

I want a job. I'll do anything it takes to earn some money. It doesn't have to be in acting, I'll even work as a Hatchet reporter. Please, somebody help.

-Erik Estrada

He sees the light

Dear Editor,

After careful consideration of the actions we undertook in February, we realize that we made one huge error. If we had to do the whole thing over again, we would unquestionably rectify this one error. In particular, White History Week should have been replaced by the phrase White History Month. You see assholes, we were right all along. Hee Hee. So fuck off.

-Keith Sopher

-President of Delta Tau Delta

He comes clean

Dear Editor,

My conscience can't stand it any longer. I must confess. When we were young, it was I who started the rumor that Mikey died after digesting Pop Rocks and Coke. It was also I who engineered the rumor that cementing Cheerios to your nipples prevents tooth decay (although this one never seemed to take off). Well, I already feel better now that I've confessed.

-Scott Sherman

We know

Dear Editor,

The Towering Inferno is my favorite movie but I'm still an asshole.

-Fireman Fred

It's worth the trip

Dear Editor,

I would like to use this space to announce a new University real estate decision. GW has signed a contract to sell the Gelman Library to Dunkin' Donuts, which plans to convert the library into a pastry shop. Although we realize the absence of a library may be an inconvenience to some students, economics dictated our decision; besides, there's nothing like a good Bavarian cruller to start the day.

-Charles "Let's make a" Diehl

It's true

Dear Editor,

Did you guys know that most robots can not get erections. I wish to teach a course in robotic sexual practices, but I'm too weird.

-Risto Marttinen

Our favorite fascist

Dear Editor,

Earlier in the year, I expressed my utter contempt for Mexicans. In the months that followed my anti-Mexican, pro-Vatican City column, I rethought my position. My views now rest on the premise that living is too good for the Mexican community. Therefore, I propose that on a day when the wind is blowing south, we nuke the living fuck out of Mexico.

-Liz Pallatto

No

Dear Editor,

The decision by God to make nighttime the color black is obviously a racist attack on the civil rights of black people everywhere. The BPU plans to protest God's action until it's rescinded ... Oh, come on guys. We're just kidding. You know, a little satire. Don't you get it?

-The BPU

Now you tell us

Dear Editor,

As Director of Australia's Institute for the Sexually Insane, I am writing to alert all American college students to be on the lookout for two patients who escaped from our clinic. These patients are two girls who go by the names Esta and Sally (although their real names are Helga "The testes tyrant" Mengele and Olga the Hun). These girls are very dangerous. Through innocent letters, they make contacts with unsuspecting American men. But once they are alone with their new American mates, the girls reveal their true selves: ex-Nazi Lesbian Nuns bent on castrating every male alive. Please, for the sake of your jewels, avoid contact with these Aussies.

New Security rules

Dear Editor,

As Director of Security, I would like to announce the following procedural revisions that Security has recently adopted:

- If any member of our force sees a black walking with a white, we shoot to kill.
- If any member of our security force learns to read or write, they will be dismissed.

● Security forces will no longer be allowed to carry mace. Instead, standard weapons will now include used tampons, velcro darts and Steve Turtill editorial cartoons.

-Curtis Goode

Try penicillin

Dear Editor,

It itches and I don't know what to do. Please help (I've already tried cream rinse).

-Fawn "Ooo, what a big contra" Hall

Ex-con

Dear Editor,

As a child, I used to let Elmer's glue dry on my fingers just so I could peel it off. I think that's why I'm a social activist. Or maybe, it has to do with the fact that when I was young, my Uncle Spike used to give me wedgies. In any case, I, and not you, am America's future.

-Dion

Lloyd speaks

Dear Editor,

Seeing as I am soon leaving the University, I find it most appropriate to now reveal a few of the observations I have made as president of GW.

- I have learned that regardless of the empty rhetoric I spew out each year, GW's academic reputation sucks.
- Additionally, it has been my experience that projectile vomiting is an effective way to quiet a crying infant.
- Finally, I have come to the conclusion that minorities really serve no proper role in American society.

-Lloyd Elliott

Don't shade your eyes, plagiarize

Dear Editor,

I wish to protest the practices of The New Republic. It seems that this neo-conservative magazine has planted a mole in my English class. This mole steals all my English essays and sends them to his superiors who, in turn, print them under names like Kondracke and Krauthammer. How sleazy can you get?

-Didi "Mr. Xerox" Norris

Typesetting gods

Dear Editor,

Bein the good sports and sexually repressed journalists (sic) that we is, we feel ethnically kumpel led t@o formally announce our plans for a hostile take over bid of The GW Hatchet. Regardless of what we have too ldo, be it merder or kiddy porn, we will topple you all. O ne day, all you liberals and supporters of democra cy will be our victims. Prepare to be conquered.

Remember when Wall Street just meant stocks and bonds?

Today, the investment game is played with options, futures, index options, junks, zero coupons—and to play profitably, you've got to know the rules, the risks, and the major players.

Now Wall Street authority Robert Sobel explains the cataclysmic changes that have stood the equity, debt, and money markets on their heads—and what these changes mean to you as an investor. You don't have to be an economist to understand today's complex market forces and investment instruments. Sobel puts it all in perspective in The New Game On Wall Street and helps you use this knowledge to sift through your options, develop a winning strategy, and put it into action.

Calhoun residents announced yesterday their intention to march Friday morning on Rice Hall in protest of miserable living conditions and an inexcusable lack of females.

"Things have really deteriorated beyond an acceptable level of intolerability," Calhoun Hall Council President Neil Zonehead said. "We're no longer willing to put up with this dingy, dilapidated building, the lack of facilities taken for granted in other halls, the positively primitive bathrooms, but most of all, for the antique elevator which many feel is a serious safety risk. Besides, we really need some chicks."

The elevator, which is described in the Residence Hall Guide as an "authentic, vintage antique," was later described by Resident Advisor John Kanchre as "a genuine, bonafide deathtrap. One of these days that cable is gonna snap and splat, it'll be all over for a few innocent residents."

"The elevator is entirely safe and far exceeds the minimum safety standards established by the National Elevator Commission," Resident Director Matt Fudgepack said. "I have no problems with riding the elevator." One observer who asked to remain anonymous commented that Fudgepack lives on the first floor and is therefore able to avoid using the elevator.

An official at Rice Hall, who also asked to remain anonymous, revealed that Calhoun was actually an "experiment" engineered by the Psychology department to study the effects of gender isolation in adolescent males. "So far, we've had some very interesting and most unusual results," Psychology Professor N. Joy Rosee said, refusing to elaborate further on the results.

"There is an immensity of latent hostility and other things in this hall," Zonehead said; "and we intend to do something about it!" The protest will take place Friday at 11 a.m.

Hot dogs have been Manoch's forte since he immigrated from Iran in 1977.

Specialties for next year include "the breakfast dog" (complete with oatmeal bran, sausage shreds and a milk basting), "the lunch dog" (a dog with tuna fish topping, lettuce and tomato garnishings and a yogurt sauce) and "the dinner delight dog" (a dog, veal stew chunks, and a bleu cheese topping).

VIRGIN PROUDLY ANNOUNCES THE WORLD'S MOST EXPENSIVE AND UNCOMFORTABLE FLIGHT TO LONDON.

Unfortunately, you can't go on that flight.

That privilege is reserved for Richard Branson, founder of Virgin
Atlantic. This summer, he'll actually be attempting to cross the ocean in a hot air balloon.

And you? If you want to fly from Newark to London, you'll just have to settle for our very inexpensive and comfortable Virgin 747's.

Sorry. But while Mr. Branson gets to spend three fun-filled days (maybe even more) bouncing around in a tiny capsule, boiling by day and freezing by night, and staring endlessly at blinking instrument panels and motionless pressure gauges, you'll be forced to settle for a comfortable seat and attentive service. Plus hit movies, music videos, comedy programs, etc. All coming at you through a pair of serious electronic headsets.

Can you believe it?

And while Richard is living it up on re-hydrated whatever-it-is and yummy vitamin supplements, you'll have to make do with a hot meal, and a snack besides.

And get this. To top it off, Richard Branson gets to pay over a million dollars more than you do.

That's right! Over a million dollars more!

Some people have all the luck.

VIRGIN ATLANTIC AIRWAYS

them more than $1 million in repairs and further delay completion of the yard.

Members of the Charles H.
Thompkins Construction Company, seeing Eagers break down, hastened to fill in the details. The giant gopher (nicknamed "Fred") by "Love Boat" fans) has been plaguing the quad's renovation for several months, they said, burrowing under new construction, ravaging the workers' lunch boxes and eating the occasional passer-by. "We never know where it will strike next," one angry worker said.

GW's Assistant Treasurer for Facilities Robert E. Dickman claims he is "not sitting still for this rodent's rampage" and has called in a specialist to spearhead the University's "war" against this "threat to our well-being and financial security." While Dickman would not identify the specialist other than to say his name was "Carl" and he had "previous experience in dealing with gophers at Bushwood Country Club," he did express his utmost confidence in the expert's ability to eradicate the monster rodent with high explosives.

Meanwhile, demonstrators from the Washington Area Rodents' Protection from Environmental Despots (WARPED) announced their plans to stage a sit-in on the quad protesting the University's treatment of the beast. "These creatures have just as much right to destroy property as we do," a WARPED spokesman said.

Fred, the gopher, could not be reached for comment.

In a related story, the Department of Defense announced today the ever-renovating and gopher-plagued quad is one of four possible contenders in the running to become the next East Coast-based test site of Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles (ICBMs). Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger praised the University for its excellent location and availability of fall-out shelters on campus.

GW administrators had little comment on the situation, saying only that they were negotiating with the federal government for a swap—the quad in exchange for the State Department building and a 10-year supply of rodent killer.

The Christian rock sounds of the Beastie Boys

by Zeus

The Beastie Boys lounge on their Four Seasons Hotel beds and peruse the Sunday Outlook section of The Washington Post. "Jeepers," Beastie Boy Mike D. exclaims. "I never realized we were perceived so ... so ... well, wrongly."

Flying into D.C. a week before their Capital Centre concert ("to see and smell those wonderful cherry blossoms, and do some sightseeing"), the rap trio face a pinnacle of their career as they attempt to repair the endless string of damaging criticisms dogging the national tour.

"Actually," Beastie MCA chagrins as he sips his ice-cold lemonade. "We're very Christian-oriented. Our name is derived from the Bible passage, Hosea 6, verse 13: 'And, lo, three boys came forth/ In the form of Beasts/ And rid fertile plains, the golden deserts, the parking lots, and such/ Of plague, pestilence, flat beer, and salt water taffy.' We're just trying to make it a more pure, Christian, wholesome world."

"When I see all the other trash children are exposed to, it just makes me want to cry."

Mike D., MCA, and King Ad Rock all met as altar boys in St. Daniel of the Tribulation, just outside New York City. One day as the three were mopping after Sunday Mass, they heard a call. "There was a heavenly scratching sound," MCA reflects. "Then, a booming voice, neither male nor female, placed the spirit of rap within. I looked at Ad Rock and Mike D., and they, too, had the glow."

While in town, the three boys will accept an honorary visit to the White House from Nancy Reagan to receive medals of commendation for their work on the "Just Say No!" campaign. "See," MCA exasperates, "I bet the press won't be there to cover that one. Gosh! We just can't get a fair break."

In Sunday's Post a disgruntled reader wrote a letter entitled "Ban the Beastie Boys." The boys were flabbergasted. "I'd bet a million bucks that person never saw our show," Mike D. says. "We do have a 'crafty girl in the cage,' and we do take turns kissing her

'naked' breast, but it's social commentary! It's our way of really visualizing the tragic society we live in where women are treated as second-class citizens. Thus, the cage. We kiss her 'naked' breast to show both her pure, beautiful naivete, and our reverence and respect for her struggle. If we can show all the junior-high kids that come to our shows the problems with our society, maybe they'll grow up to be better citizens, better Americans. How pro-women can we get?"

"One tactic we use," King Ad Rock injects, "is overkill. We scream as loud as we can on stage, we mope around and break things, we throw beer on the audience, we over-romanticize drugs, we bring out a huge inflatable penis, just so that maybe those kids will say, 'Hey, this stuff is too much. I don't want to drink, do drugs, have sex, if this is what it's like.'"

Out strolling along the reflecting pool, the three boys feed the ducks rolls stolen from the hotel and enjoy the spring breeze. A furious, middle-aged woman marches straight up to Mike D., hits him with her handbag, and marches away without saying a word. Nothing need be said. Tears swell up in Mike D.'s brown eyes and his bottom lip quivers. "May God Bless her, that she understand," he whimpers.

On the Beastie Boys tour shirts is the slogan: "Beastie Boys. Get off my dick." "It's a real simple way of explaining the hazards of sexual intercourse in these days, what with all the AIDS problems," Mike D. explains. "The slogan just says, in a junior-high kind of way—Watch yourself. Be discriminatory in your relationships." A new way the Beastie Boys are attempting to make their point is to disseminate at their shows, leather-bound Bibles with a three-pack of condoms taped to the inside cover.

In their never-ending struggle to salvage their reputations, the Beastie Boys have plans to do a benefit single with the Mandrell Sisters for Jim and Tammy Bakker and the PTL, or "Praise the Lord," or "People that Love" club. "Jim and Tammy have really been inspirational for us," Ad Rock grins. "Those two really helped us hone and refine our stage show so we really make our moral points clear and concise. I think the giant inflatable penis idea originally came from Jim, but I'm not sure."

The time arrives for the meeting with Nancy Reagan and the boys help each other fix their ties. A remarkable silence fills the room. "Uh," MCA explains. "Um, well, Jeepers! What would you have to say if you were going to meet the Nancy Reagan? We're hoping to get her to come on stage for our show and say a few words about drugs. Boy! Wouldn't that be something?!"

The totally misunderstood Beastie Boys search for a better society

Rereleased! The Tipper Gore heavy metal album

by Vain Mark

Good music by classic artists never dies, it just goes out of print.

Due to a nostalgia fad during the last few years, old music from classic performers is finding its way to a new audience. Songs from soundtracks like The Big Chill and Stand By Me, along with other albums being released on CD, such as the entire Beatles catalogue and Motown classics, have become available to a new generation of listeners.

Combining the new interests in oldies along with the huge popularity of Heavy Metal, someone could make a large amount of cash.

For this very reason, the first album of former recording star, Tipper Gore, now head of the P.M.R.C. (Parents Music Resource Center), a group trying to start a rating system for rock records, is being re-released (As many know, Mrs. Gore has her position at the P.M.R.C. due to her extensive knowledge of the music business).

After years of collecting dust, her 1972 debut album, Kill Your Family, is still as good as the best Black Sabbath, or dare I even say, the greatest of the supergroup Kiss.

The title cut, "Kill Your Family," a duet with Alice Cooper, is backed with excellent bone-crushing bass and crotch-throbbing drums. The lyrics scream about the problems many kids face at home. On this single, which originally sold 2 million copies, (bought primarily by males in their early teens), Tipper sings, "My parents want me to go to church/ I said go screw the Lord/ Sneak into dad's room tonight/ Kill him with a sword."

"Sex with Satan" will always be remembered for its performance in concert, where Mrs. Gore, dressed in a scant string bikini and doing a mean pelvic thrust, delivers such lines such as: "Poke me with your pitchfork ... squirm like you have rabies/ Give me kinky sex in Hades."

The ballad "I Like Pain" is a moving change of pace from the rest of the album. In this tune, Tipper uses her soothing voice to express her feelings towards a dominating love master. Here Mrs. Gore croons, "Drag a rake across my back/ Grunt like you are mean/ Put my foot in a blender/ Shout 'I am Jethro Bodine.'"

The excellent back-up band consisted of the late Crack Bitter, who choked to death on a leather wallet in 1977, on lead guitar and the late Rex Groper, who hung himself with a cable TV controller, bass. Other doomed members included Mick "Squirmy" Hollins, who was killed in a freak grocery cart accident, on drums and the late keyboard player "Krull," who died of natural causes, a most unusual demise for a rock star. These innovative masters' influences are still felt in the music of our greatest bands on the scene today, such as Grave Digger, Grim Reaper and White Snake.

It's great to have the music of Tipper Gore back in the record stores: The powerful sound of her band, along with her social-conscious lyrics still hold up today.

I am joined by the other head-bangers of the world (and underworld) in hoping Mrs. Gore will leave her post at the P.M.R.C. and return to where she belongs, spreading the word of Satan, sex and pain to the youth of America.

Ex-JAPs desire end to 'whine and frigid' stereotype

by David Howard Aaron Goldberg III
Mommy's Little Boy

Three Thurston Hall students announced yesterday the formation of "JAPs Anonymous," an informal therapy group which will deal specifically with the problems and difficulties faced by JAPs today.

Founder Coco Greenbaum, a self-proclaimed "reformed JAP," said she believes this is the first group of its kind ever. "One day, I woke up and looked in the mirror, and like, I noticed that my hair accounted for over half my total body weight. I realized then that I really had a problem."

"Totally," said her friend and co-founder Lisa Rosenthal. "For me, it was like almost a religious experience when I realized that I had bought enough oversized sweat clothes to have won a controlling interest in the Champion Clothing Company."

The group will meet weekly to discuss the "incredible difficulties of overcoming JAP-dom," and will utilize creative therapy to help students "surmount the obstacles of makeup abuse, Guess-aholism and socio-political apathy." Programs entitled "The Hardest Step of All: Going that First Day Without Makeup," "Learning to Live Without Designer T-Shirts so that Others May Eat," and "Introduction to Natural Hair Management" have already been scheduled.

"What a lot of people refuse to accept is that JAP-dom is a disease, and helping people to realize that they do have a problem is the toughest step of all," Greenbaum said.

"You are so right, Coco," Rosenthal said. "Could you hand me my lizard-skin handbag?"

Greek weekend starts with barbeque, beer

Greek Weekend kicked off last night with what fraternity brothers are calling "the best barbeque we've ever had."

Complete with hamburgers, spareribs, kegs of beer, and a 15-foot burning cross, the event was attended by more than 200 fraternity brothers dressed in their ceremonial white robes.

"And this is just the beginning of the weekend," said Tony Pagliaro, Imperial Wizard of the Interfraternity Forum. "We're also going to host a 'Konklave on the Kwad.' We'll be showing Birth of a Nation and we'll have a guest speaker from Skokie, Illinois to give us some fundraising and organizing hints." Adolph Mengele of the Skokie Chamber of Commerce will give the keynote speech "White supremacy for fun and profit."

The Greek Weekend festivities were the brainchild of Delta Tau Delta President Keith Sopher. "Hey, you know us wacky fraternity guys, always ready to have a good time, drink some suds, cause race riots. It's all part of being a brother."

"We started in a swamp, and we'll end up in a swamp," GW President Lloyd H. Elliott said, confirming a D.C. surveyor's report, which claimed the University is slowly sliding into the Potomac River.

The report was released after an extensive survey of the Foggy Bottom area, conducted by Washington contractors Kent C. Strate and Associates, revealed the Potomac basin was rising rapidly and would engulf this section of the city by 1989. "Yep, she's definitely going over the brink," Strate said.

While the mayor's office is in an uproar over losing the many government offices located in the area, University administrators are remaining calm. "What the hell," said GW's Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French. "I mean, after all, it's just water." French said he was certain GW students and faculty could cope with the situation and there need not be any significant change in the normal running of the University. "A few scuba masks and diving gear and we'll be fine," he said.

Elliott said the only change in his ambitious expansion plans would be to call GW a "Harvard in the Potomac" rather than a "Harvard on the Potomac."

Financial administrators were not as confident. "We'll have to raise the tuition," Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl said. "It's going to be a real problem handling all those soggy checks."

"All I know is, it's going to make my job a lot easier," said Paul Wilkins, coach of GW's crew team. "No more walking 10 blocks in the morning to get some practice. We'll just open the door and go to it."

The Smith Center and Thurston Hall are among the first University buildings slated to go under, according to Strate's report. "That's no big loss," Assistant Director of Housing Mark Crowley said. "The intramural teams can adapt, and Thurston was just going to be full of freshmen next year anyway." Crowley said the Housing Office is considering raising the rent at Thurston because, technically, the residents will soon have their own interior pools.

To offset the cost of living "in the water" for future classes, the Office of Student Financial Aid plans to implement a new "floating cash fund," Associate Director of Financial Aid Laura Donnelly said. "Incoming students will have the chance to use any University funds they can dredge out of the river after we sink," she said adding, "Do you want me to repeat that for you?"

Student's reactions have been understated thus far, mainly because nobody really knows about the situation yet, GW Student Association President Adam Freedman said. When asked for his opinion, Freedman replied, "Who cares? I'm out of here after next year anyway. All I can say is 'good luck' to all the fish!"

New Rat delicacy assaults innocent bystanders

by Vain Mark

J.R. Ewing's illegitimate son

During the past month, student morale has been at an all-time high and professors have reported a rise in class attendance along with an improvement in grades, all of which can be traced to George's Rathskellar's new gyro sandwich, according to the Dean of Students Office.

The arrival of the gyro, a Greek lamb sandwich served on a pita, has had a huge impact on campus life at GW.

"I have not in my 23 years at this University seen anything gain such a following in such a short amount of time," University President Lloyd H. Elliott said while dabbing yogurt sauce off his face in a corner booth at the Rat.

Alan Knapp, manager of the Rat and the man who brought the gyro to GW, will be given a GW Award for Excellent Service to the School and will later be honored when newly-named Fungler Hall will be renamed Knapp Hall. "The gyro has changed my life. I am now fulfilled," Knapp said. He said he is working on his newest creation for the Rat—chicken nuggets.

Students across campus agree the gyro is a welcome addition to the GW menu. Montie Derby, a freshman from Hawaii, said, "My father is coming to visit this week and the first thing I'm going to do is buy him a gyro. Now I am proud that I go to this great school."

The Greek Student Association said the gyro is a "step in the right direction, but we will not sleep easy until the Rat serves baklava and grape leaves."

In other gyro-related news, applications and transfers to GW have increased since the gyro was introduced. Included in the transfers are University of North Carolina basketball star J.R. Reid, who will play for the Colonials in the fall, and model/movie star Brooke Shields, who currently attends Princeton University.

News Briefs

So you say you're having troubles with foreign TAs who can't string together three English words in a row? GW top administrators are having the same trouble with one of their own.

President Lloyd Elliott said last week that Columbian College Dean Clara Lovett would have to take two semesters of the "English as a Foreign Language" course.

Since coming to GW from Whats Amatta U. two years ago, Lovett has mystified students, faculty, and administrators with her accent.

"We didn't think it would be fair to make all those engineering students take the course when Dean Lovett still hasn't mastered much of the language," Elliott said.

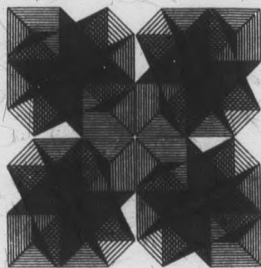

"I donta think ista fair to single me out, but ifa thatsa the way the bossa wants it, thatsa the way it goes," Lovett said.

The Registrar's office has announced a new plan to ease the long lines that accompany pre-registration in the more popular introductory courses. Students from Cherry Hill, New Jersey and Great Neck, Long Island will register the day after the rest of the University chooses classes.

"We finally decided this would be easier and cheaper than buying an expensive computer system, and it ought to cut the lines in half," said Registrar J. Matthew Gaglione.

Naked skydiver plummets to death

by Bill Cosby
Puddin' Head

The GW Hack it editorial staff, in a rare historic moment Sunday evening, witnessed the birth of a new adhesive product whose presence on the market will upset trends in the industry for years to come, according to economic analysts.

The product, a miracle epoxy, was initially disguised as Real Fresh butterscotch pudding and remained virtually unnoticed to GW students as it sat in its brown container in Marvin Center ground floor vending machines next to the boxed pancakes.

No longer will the product go unnoticed, promises GW Bookstore Manager Marion Dodd, who says she has bought exclusive marketing rights to the product. "I think we should keep this marketing venture in-house," Dodd said, adding that she did not want a product that originated on campus to be picked up by another university.

"People aren't yet aware of the product's versatility," she said. Dodd said she wants to call the adhesive Krazy Pudding and use it primarily for hanging posters in dorm rooms. According to results from tests conducted at The GW Hack it, Krazy Pudding can suspend a 120-page book for 45 minutes, enough time to impress your friends who previously scoffed at the lack of artistic displays on your dorm walls.

Tests were also conducted with a pen cap, which attached itself to the amorphous golden substance for more than three hours. Yet experts agree the most important test in determining Krazy Pudding's validity was the suspension of the March 26, 28-page edition of The GW Hack it.

"Certainly, this confirms our suspicions that this is no ordinary pudding," said pudding connoisseur Kevin "The Beave" McKeever.

"Snack Pak was never like this when I was a kid," said a disappointed Sue, "call me Left Breast" Sutter.

GW Hack it editor-in-question Jim Clarke, who discovered the butterscotch concoction while trying to force-feed the paper's mismanaging editor, Scott Smith, the toxic substance, said, "I didn't know what I was getting into when I bought the Krazy Pudding, but now I'm glad I did."

"Who would have believed that something that tastes so vile could paste so well?" said Rich "Dicky Pussy" Katz, executive editor of The GW Hack it.

Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that ingesting Real Fresh butterscotch pudding may be hazardous to your health, but he recommends the boxed pancakes. See the ground floor Marvin Center vending machines for more information.

QUESTION #4.

WHEN SHOULD THE COLLEGE STUDENT CALL FAMILY AND FRIENDS?

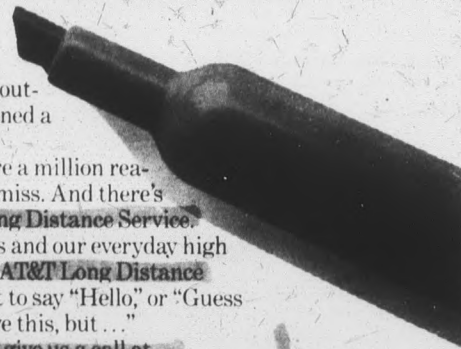

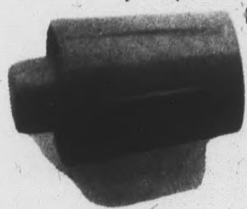

- During weekends until 5 pm Sunday, and from 11 pm to 8 am Sunday through Friday, to save over 50% off AT&T's weekday out-of-state rates.
- The minute your bank statement reveals a negative $60 balance.
- Between 5 pm and 11 pm, Sunday through Friday, to save 38% off AT&T's weekday out-of-state rate.
- With AT&T, any time you want a clear long distance connection.
- When you hear they've removed the mysterious "Venetian Blind" ritual from your fraternity initiation.

You've just aced the calculus exam that you'd been dreading like the plague. Your date last night told you she had an "out-of-body" experience. Your roommate's joined a new cult that worships luncheon meats.

When you're away at school, there are a million reasons to stay in touch with the people you miss. And there's no easier way to do it than with AT&T Long Distance Service.

Between our discount calling periods and our everyday high quality service, the best time to call with AT&T Long Distance Service is any time you want to say "Hello," or "Guess what?" or "You won't believe this, but..."

Flying condoms mar "safe politics" talk

by Damien B. Ver
Devil's Advocate

"If all you want to do at your age is discuss how Reagan will recover from Iran/Contra, debate the value of SDI, or get your head bashed in over apartheid, then I say this—you're sick, sick, sick, SICK!" Donald D. Morosse told a crowd of GW students Tuesday night.

Morosse, the latest person to announce his candidacy in the 1988 Presidential race, spoke about politically "coming of age" as a standing-room only crowd of students cheered and jeered during the first of three two-hour "Politics By Age Eighteen: Is It Safe? Is It Spreading?" forums sponsored by the Program Board and the GW Student Association in the Hall of Fungur.

Both a former lawyer and card-carrying Republican, Morosse said he has seen "the error of wicked, money-grubbing ways" and how an early interest in politics "when I should have been drinking too much beer or, at least, participating in panty raids" almost ruined him for life.

"I was a sophomore at Yale, I subscribed to the National Review, I thought Barry Goldwater was God, and I now regret every wasted moment," Morosse said. "All I have to tell my kids about growing up is that I could name every U.S. Congressman from 1964 in descending length of tenure."

"I, Donald David, have no political ties. I, Donald David, have no political ambitions. We don't need a politician in the White House. We need a person. A living, breathing, Everyman—not an actor, or special interest man, or a liberal or a conservative." Morosse said although he is not necessarily the optimal candidate, he was "damn close to it."

"Besides," he added, "Pat Sajak declined the nomination."

Adversaries of Morosse have often chided him for being a "front for the Democrats" because of his harsh criticisms of his Republican past and the Reagan administration. However, Morosse answered back Tuesday saying "I don't just pick on Republicans, I simply pick on all inept people."

"Seriously, student liberals/Democrats are not any better than anyone else. But from what I've seen, they are at least willing to go crazy and have a few uninhibited thrills every so often," Morosse said. "For instance, a CD wouldn't ask for your position on the deficit before he tried to merge assets with you. A CD would start merging before you could say 'inflationary gap.'"

"I know what he means," said Stefani Olsen, president of the GW CDs. "I've seen it happen to people at Odd's and the [21st] Amendment. It's not a pretty sight."

At one point during his speech, Morosse was interrupted by a group of "Safe Sex" advocates who pelted the speaker with boxes of condoms while chanting "No more gays, no more AIDS, give protection to the underaged!"

Morosse, a staunch supporter of free love and alcohol as a preventative of college political syndrome, said the rubbery crowd was "a warped group, molded in the same throbbing vein as those members of corporate America."

"We've already had a war in our factories. They already had a war to keep us on our knees. We're still fighting a war to stop those spying Japanese," he said. "And now they're gonna have a war against venereal disease."

"By golly, he's the type of leader we need here," GW Student Association President Adam Freedman said. "I'm sure I can convince the [GW Presidential Search] Committee to give him a fair shake if he doesn't win in 1988."

The next forum in the "Politics By Eighteen" series will feature Tammy and the Rev. Jim Bakker demonstrating the joys of marriage, religion and politics for college students across the nation. Part two will be held on Monday, April 6 at 8 p.m. in FUN-103.

EVERYBODY WILL BE AT KITCHEN AID on Saturday, April 4, 9PM, MC First Floor.

GENERAL KNOWLEDGE: When Tim leaves the group, he heads straight for Ashton's having found out that she was behind much of what happened. He arrives at her apartment as she is leaving with a suitcase. Pushing her back through the open door, he says, "Okay, Ashton, I want the truth and I want it now!"

"Tim, what are you ranting about?" "You know exactly what I'm ranting about or you wouldn't be hightailing it out of here! This whole mess with Cathy and Michael! You're only interested in the was to help him!"

"That was how it started, but, Tim, I really like you."

"Ashton, you are so full of it, it's disgusting. You're not pregnant either, that was a ploy to keep me from going tonight."

"But, Timmy, I did it for us," she coos seductively as she approaches him while removing her coat. "She was in the way," she continues as she unbuttons her blouse. "I only did it for you," as she unzips and drops her skirt. "Please forgive me," and she kisses him long and hard.

Thinking of Cathy, Tim pushes Ashton away. "You are nothing but a slut," Cathy has more class in her little finger than you could ever have." Tim turns and leaves, while Ashton screams profanities after him.

7'4" Bol heads for GW court Manute's 'little' sis to take over Colonial center spot

by Randi Barer
Kenny Barer's Mom

Khartoum, Sudan—Buncha Bol, the 15-year-old kid sister of Washington Bullets 7'6" center Manute Bol, yesterday signed a letter-of-intent to play basketball at GW next year, the school's men's head basketball coach, John Kuester, said.

Bol, 7'4", will immediately step into the Colonial starting center position, Kuester said. The two-year coach has been searching for a dominating pivotman since the 1985 graduation of Mike Brown, now with the Chicago Bulls of the NBA. GW was 10-19 last season.

"We're drooling over her ability to solve our team's problems," Kuester said. "She's got great potential. Mike Jones especially can't wait to see her supposed on- and off-court talents."

Bol is equally excited about travelling overseas to play for the worst team in the nation's capital.

"I can't wait to play," she said through a translator. "With me on the court and Johnny K. on the sidelines, we'll tear up the Atlantic 10 Conference. The only thing that gets me very upset is how Johnny K. could be so ignorant as to let Kenny Barer step on the court. When I heard he was signing autographs for those vulnerable little dweebs in his psychology class, I almost puked."

Bol averaged 21 points and 18 rebounds for the Louis Kartens team of the Sudan Basquetbo' Associatio'. She predicts the transformation to American basketball to be an easy adjustment.

"I'll fit in pretty well in Johnny K's offensive scheme," she said. "And boy, do I want to play along side Max Blank. That knee brace really gives me the hots."

Kuester said the seemingly sexually-frustrated Bol will not be allowed pre- and post-game entrance into the men's locker room. Kuester's decision to ban Bol came a month after Bol demanded to change with the boys.

She's also happy to be close to brother Manute.

"I'm glad we'll be around each other," she said. "... not because I like him or anything, but because he's the only one in the world who has a car which is driven from the back seat."

Manute, reached at his Springfield, Va. home yesterday, retaliated: "If she thinks she's gonna get my car, she's wrong. I've got the last laugh, though. She's gotta play at the same time with that team."

NCAA slams door on GW athletics

by Bill Clements
Texas Corruption Chief

GW's athletic programs are "rife with widespread corruption and violations," a spokesman for the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) announced yesterday, following a six-month investigation.

"This program is a disgrace to college athletics and should be closed down immediately," said NCAA spokesman Samuel M. Underwood. He listed over 32 violations committed by the University's athletic departments in the past three years, including recruiting and play-for-pay illegalities.

No one in the department would comment on the record about the NCAA's findings, but one source, who wished to remain anonymous, said punishment should be minimal because most of the illegal efforts failed.

"To impose severe penalties would be ludicrous," the source said. "Recruits said the money wasn't enough, they refused to sleep with our co-eds, and they laughed when we offered to have students take Astronomy for them."

Underwood said sanctions are being discussed and will not be imposed for a few weeks. He declined comment on what sanctions may be imposed, but other officials speculated that penalties will be severe.

"GW may be buried for a long time to come," said Mitchell Sloan, who was part of the NCAA team which investigated the University. "Don't expect to see a men's basketball game at GW next year."

GW is accused of extreme violations in the recruiting of several basketball players over the past three years. Although NCAA officials declined to name any present Colonials involved, they did say incoming recruit Daniel Lloyd was attained under illegal circumstances.

According to the NCAA's findings, Lloyd was offered cash and gifts by boosters, co-eds for sexual favors and was told students would take classes for him. Lloyd refused comment, but his high school coach, Frank N. Ernst, said the allegations are true.

"It stinks," Ernst said. "The kid really has no choice when they're waving cash, cars and women in his face."

Boosters reportedly offered over $7,000 in cash for Lloyd to sign and bought him a brand-new Trans Am sports car. Students report being approached about taking classes for Lloyd, while six co-eds admitted to accepting $350 each to sleep with the recruit.

A booster, who wished to remain anonymous, said similar deals had been offered to other prospective recruits, but all offers were refused. "One recruit," the booster said, "considered the deal until we showed him an Astro exam, to which he replied, 'Have someone take this for me? How dumb do you think I am?'" Another recruit was close to signing until a co-ed showed. He began laughin' and told me, 'I got a better babe from SMU. Give me two and we got a deal.' I told him to go to hell. One coed's enough. I'm a booster, not a pimp."

An in-house investigation by GW early last year turned up "no evidence of any wrongdoing by the athletic departments," according to a report released last June. Things came apart for the program in September, when ex-Colonial Lon Gawn, who transferred to Southern Methodist University two years ago, said the only reason he left GW was SMU offered more money than he was receiving at GW.

Sports Briefs

Gimelstob Update

This is what four years as GW's head basketball coach, two years as assistant coach to Jerry Primm at the University of Utah and three years as assistant coach to Bobby Knight at Indiana University got Gerry Gimelstob:

1. A real estate agency in Boca Raton, Florida.
2. An abysmal reputation in the world of college basketball.
3. A warrant for his arrest if he should trespass onto GW property.
4. An offer to fill the public relations director position at SMU.

This is what coaching experience didn't get Gerry Gimelstob:

1. A Big East coaching job.
2. A Big Ten coaching job.
3. A WAC coaching job...
4. Any Division I coaching job.
5. A Division II coaching job.
6. An NAIA coaching job.
7. A sports-affiliated job.

Blessed Brown

Mike Brown, the 6'9" 250-lb. former GW star center, now a Chicago Bull forward has made a decision to give up his blossoming NBA career and turn to the clergy.

Brown, never known to back off from a challenge, has been frustrated recently by his lack of playing time with the Bulls. "I have often found myself praying on the sacred wooden bench that Father Collins would give me the opportunity to display the skills I have been blessed with by the Almighty," he said. "I would never want to cause any harm on the court, however. Whenever I have committed a foul I expect the most severe punishment; I have harmed another individual," Brown added.

His decision to join the priesthood comes on the heels of a recent battle with Philadelphia 76ers forward Charles "The Round Mound of Rebound" Barkley. "Mr. Barkley and I were exchanging unpleasanties underneath the holy hoop when I suddenly realized that I wanted to help him rather than hurt him. It was at that time I knew the priesthood was for me," Brown confessed.
